DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sugiyama et al. 714 in view of Ueda et al. '544

In regard to claim 1, Sugiyama et al. discloses a pipe coupling comprising a tubular body for a pipe to be inserted in through a rear end thereof, a front 3 and a back ring 4 to be fitted around the pipe projecting from the rear end of the body, and a cap nut 5 for tightening up the front and back rings to fix the pipe to the body, the pipe coupling being characterized in that the back ring 4 is made of an alloy that is intended to provide corrosion protection and that is harder than the first ring (see col. 2, lines 60-61) and pipe (see fig. 5 where 4 is biting into outer surface of pipe) to provide a compact and corrosion resistant pipe joint, but Sugiyama et al. does not disclose that the back ring is made out of the exact composition as that recited by the Applicant. Ueda et al. '544 teaches the use and making of an alloy as that of the present claims and Applicant admits in the arguments submitted on 3/15/07 that it would have been obvious to use the alloy of Ueda et al., having a Vicker's hardness value as recited in the claims, to form the back ring in a pipe coupling.

Sugiyama et al. is silent to the exact hardness values of the pipe and front ring, but does disclose that the front ring is harder than the pipe because fig. 5 discloses the front ring biting into the pipe wall, and Sugiyama et al. also discloses that the back ring is harder than the rest of the assembly (see col. 2, lines 60-61). Although the exact hardness values of the material are not disclosed it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to make the front ring harder than the pipe wall and the back ring harder than the front ring and in the hardness ranges recited by the Applicant because the selection of a known material based upon its suitability for the intended use is a design consideration within the skill of the art. In re Leshin, 227 F.2d 197, 125 USPQ 416 (CCPA 1960).

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-2 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a).

Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

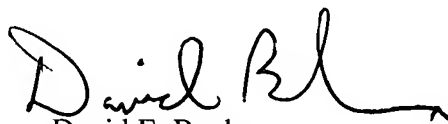

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
